Daring to Care Again

January seems to be the time everyone talks about making new resolutions. Then by the next month, those are forgotten. What has us give up on these resolutions? Why do we wait for a time to start? I mean, if it is important to you and your life, wouldn't you and shouldn't you start the moment you realize it? Why care when everything seems to stay the same. This is a great rousing topic for us to start off the new year with. It will be an exciting conversation, that you will want to be present for. As always, we will have fun and learn a lot about ourselves and life.
